Council Approves Parking Meter Trial

OK'S BILL TO TRY DEVICES FOR 9 MONTHS

Eight Members Vote In Favor Of Legislation; One Absent For Session.

EFFECTIVE IN 30 DAYS

Service-Safety Director Asks Committee to Assist In Deciding Type of Meters.

City council today had passed final legislation authorizing installation of parking meters in Mansfield on a trial basis of nine months.

With eight members present, council voted unanimously to accept the machines as an "experiment" to alleviate downtown traffic congestion

Harry Emmons councilman-at-large, was the only absent member. He is out of the city on vacation.

The ordinance, sponsored by Arthur L Croak, chairman of council's traffic committee, will become effective in 30 days

It authorizes Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to establish parking meter zones with time limitations not to exceed one hour and to provide for the immediate installation of the meters by calling for bids for the leasing of the machines.

Before giving the measure its final reading last night Croak called council's attention to the fact that meters had been recommended by the Citizens' committee on traffic which recently completed a city-wide survey of Mansfield's traffic ills

Russell D. Porch said the committee's report "means a lot to me."

Only Favors 'Trial.'

George C. Kyle who has voiced disapproval of the installation of the machines also said he was impressed by the committee's survey, but was only voting for a 'trial period of the meters.'

The measure provides that the service director shall advertise

PLAN SHAKE-UP

Berlin Displeased With Some Of Its Diplomats.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A shake-up of German diplomatic and consular staffs in the western hemisphere was forecast in reliable quarters today as a result of measures adopted at the Havana Pan-American conference against "fifth column" activities.

German authorities were said to be perturbed by the determined attitude of the American Republics and by the manner in which some Nazi officials have aroused concern in the countries where they were stationed.

A possible withdrawal of a considerable number and their replacement by diplomatic officials less active as Nazi party members was expected by some well-informed persons.

Committee Urges Quick Passage of Draft Bill

Senate Approaches Vote on National Guard Training Bill.

FAVOR 'HOME GUARD'

Legislation Planned to Organize Militia for States.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Prompt enactment of compulsory military training legislation was recommended to the senate by its military committee today with the statement that "reasonable prudence demands an immediate and substantial increase in our armed forces"

"It would be criminal," the committee reported "to give the nation a false sense of security by the mere possession of defensive armaments and a corresponding lack of trained men"

Scheduled for consideration tomorrow, the legislation previously had been approved by the committee, 35 to 3

Meanwhile, a movement to form a "home guard" composed primarily of World war veterans gathered headway in congress as the senate approached a vote on the bill permitting the president to order the national guard into active training.

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) asked the senate military committee to begin work Friday on legislation authorizing formation of state militia units to replace guardsmen called into federal service.

The measure, he told reporters, probably will follow generally plans outlined yesterday by President Roosevelt at a Hyde Park press conference.

Mr Roosevelt said that the organizations probably would be built around a nucleus of trained men furnished by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Whether the federal government would be called on to furnish equipment and to aid in training the groups is a question yet

SLEEPS UNDER TRAIN, KILLED

Loudonville War Vet Believed To Have Crawled Under Cars During Rainstorm.

LOUDONVILLE — Believed to have fallen asleep under a freight car where he had sought shelter from a rainstorm, Albert Bell, 47, Loudonville World war veteran, died at Ashland hospital today of injuries received yesterday when he was dragged by the cars as they were attached to a switch engine.

Bell was found seriously injured under a string of cars on the railroad siding at the Loudonville stockyards by J. E. Phillmore, a brakeman on a crew which had been shifting cars in the yards

Several cars had been shifted on the stockyards siding before Bell was discovered. Trainmen said they had determined the engine did not pass over him but that several of the cars did.

He was taken to Samaritan hospital at Ashland where it was found that he was suffering from a broken back and a badly mangled right elbow.

He is survived by a wife and three children. The body was returned to Loudonville.

DENY BLAME FOR DELAYS ON STREET PAVING

City Officials, Contractor Disclaim Responsibility For Slow Progress.

PRELIMINARY WORK LAGS

Concrete Work, Expected to Start This Week, Held Up By W. 4th Intersections.

Responsibility for the delay on the East and West Fourth street paving, which is irking businessmen along the street, was disclaimed today by both city officials and the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company

Carl H Stander, president of the firm, last week said he expected his men to start pouring concrete July 29, but today, more than a week later, he still was uncertain as to when WPA would have the preliminary work far enough along to start that part of the job

The city has nothing to do with the job except to contribute a portion of the funds, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said. The work is being done by WPA under supervision of the state highway department.

WPA officials however, could not be reached for an explanation concerning the retarded progress and Murray D. Shaffer, division highway engineer at Ashland said only that the work was under contract to the Stander firm for completion before Nov. 30.

It was expected today that the paving company would begin pouring concrete the latter part of the week. WPA workmen today began tearing up the North Walnut street intersection, one of the reasons for delaying concrete pouring

The traffic light at the crossing was taken down and excavation was well under way at noon. Workmen said forms for the concrete parking strips would probably be put down tomorrow. This would signal the way for pouring concrete between North Diamond and North Mulberry streets.

Stander said today he was eager to get the concrete work under way but that he could not start until the grading is far enough advanced so it will not hinder progress.

He said the concrete work between Diamond and Mulberry streets could be completed in three days pointing out that the grading west of Mulberry street was not far enough along to provide the immediate follow up for his workmen.

After the parking strips are placed it will be about 10 days before the center concrete foundation for the brick paving can be put down.

Police Say Girls Hypnotized When Applying for Job

The 50-year-old man was held by police for investigation

Officers found a partly-dressed girl in the man's combined office and living rooms. The girl said that the last thing she remembered was the man waving his hands in front of her face and telling her to sleep. Another girl was found asleep in the apartment.

Frank A Dorsey of Columbus, state medical examiner, conducted a private investigation

Persons living in the vicinity said that more than 100 girls and women had answered the advertisement which asked for a "young girl to work in a doctor's office three nights a week"

Fascists Seek To Win Control Of Suez Canal

Mussolini's Columns Attempt to Open Path to Gulf of Aden and Red Sea as First Step Toward New Roman Empire

BULLETIN

ROME—Italian armed forces struck through the air and across the deserts of Africa today in a campaign aimed at breaking British power in the Mediterranean, where a British war fleet was reported to have rushed to patrol duty off the coast of Egypt.

(By United Press)

Fascism cautiously challenged the might of the British empire in Africa today in a long-range campaign for a new Roman empire around the Mediterranean.

The armed forces of Premier Benito Mussolini in Africa aimed at control of the Suez canal as their ultimate objective, but immediate operations—so far preliminary to an apparently imminent general offensive—were centered along the Libyan frontier of Egypt, in north Kenya colony (British) and in British Somaliland, which has been invaded by three Italian columns.

Sun-baked desert land where the temperatures mount to 120 degrees, the British navy which was reported steaming along the Egyptian coast, and British African armies were the foes of the Fascist fighters, but so far the war has been fought most furiously in the air

There was little definite regarding operations of the three Italian columns that advancing into the dry and burning frontier of British Somaliland (home of the famous British camel corps) in an effort to cut a path to the Gulf of Aden entrance to the Red sea.

Italian airplanes, however, bombed Berbera, the chief port of the British territory; and also attacked the important port of Aden, across the gulf.

Farther north, the British reported that big Italian forces were concentrated on the Libyan frontier.

The British claimed to dominate the eastern areas of Libya and Cairo communiques indicated confidence that any Fascist offensive could be repulsed.

Fascist aerial forces, apparently operating in advance of ground attacks, bombed the British camp at Sollum, the railroad lines at the big naval base of Alexandria and also attacked Marsa Matruh according to the Rome communique

On the European front, the war continued in the air but with no change in regard to the threatened offensive against the British Isles.

German planes were reported by the Nazi high command to have bombed British airfields in Wales, the great Vickers Armstrong airplane factory at Chester and a munitions factory at Swansea, while a single German naval vessel was said to have sunk 30,000 tons of British shipping.

British raids on military objectives in Holland and the reich continued. German planes dropped incendiary bombs on Scotland this morning but the last 24 hours has been unusually quiet as far as air attacks on Britain are concerned.

WRATH: Britain Angered By Cudahy Comment on Belgium

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The state department asked Ambassador Kennedy in London today for a complete text of the interview given there yesterday by John F. Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium, which was sharply criticized in the British press.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The wrath of Britain's press fell today about the ears of John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, who yesterday warned that Belgium faces famine unless she is able to import wheat after Oct. 1.

Several comments offered by Cudahy at a press conference aroused the ire of British newspapers, among them his statement that the Germans in Belgium showed great restraint and that German troops there "behaved better than American soldiers would have done under similar circumstances."

Under the ironical headline, 'Strange Statements By U S Envoy," the London News Chronicle said in an editorial:

"It is generally felt, on grounds of good taste alone, that this is hardly the time for a foreign diplomat, ostensibly on a private visit in England, to praise openly the German conduct of their invasion of an innocent neutral and by implication make it appear that Britain is responsible for famine in Belgium. . . .

"Who does Cudahy think invaded Belgium—Great Britain?"

REPLY: Gayda Says Axis Has No Designs on Western World

(By Associated Press)

ROME—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, replied today to the warning of United States Secretary of State Hull against the danger of aggression by declaring that Germany and Italy have no intention of carrying the war into the western hemisphere.

Gayda who frequently expresses the views of the Italian government wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that Hull was "creating a phantom of German-Italian menace" for political purposes.

"It is evident that Hull would like to alarm the American nations with a feeling that a transfer of the war to the American continent by the victorious Axis powers is more or less imminent," Gayda wrote.

"It is well now to point out once more that this insinuation is absolutely unfounded, arbitrary and let it be said with respect for the eminent American statesman tendentious rather than provocative."

Hull's statement yesterday asked the American people to be ready and willing for real sacrifice of time and of substance and for hard personal service" and to "arm to such an extent that the forces of conquest and ruin will not dare to make an attack on us or any part of this hemisphere."

Italy and Germany entered the war to solve European problems and never thought and will never think of threatening other continents," Gayda asserted.

Rival Camps Hurl Verbal Blasts as Tense Situation Grips Washington

Bitterness Breaks Out In Defense Debate In Congress.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A tenseness, unequalled since World war days, is rapidly taking Washington by the throat

The excessive bitterness which has marked congressional debate during the past few days is generally regarded in Washington as a fairly accurate mirror of the feeling which has permeated the capital since the fall of France

Charges of "slacker," "fifth columnist" "Nazi agent" "British agent," "war monger" and similar accusations which have punctuated the debate of the law-makers are viewed as actually the outward manifestation of two bitterly opposed camps:

1. Those who are sincerely convinced that a movement is under way to throw the United States into the war within the next few months, and,

2 Those who appear to be convinced that if Great Britain suffers the same fate as France, Germans may invade the western hemisphere almost immediately.

In the first group the most active leaders have been Col Charles A Lindbergh former secretary of War Woodring, Senators Wheeler (D Mont.), Hiram Johnson (R Calif Bennett Clark (D Mo.) Holt (D W Va.), and John Lewis of the CIO

Stalk Man In City This Season

So you're going on your vacation, my dear Annabelle, and this time you hope to meet "someone interesting." This, translated, means you hope to meet an eligible man.

You tell me you're 27, but are never taken for a day over 22; you're easy on the eyes, dress well, and your last three vacations were sorry disappointments. You met nothing but dowagers, "wife-watched husbands, acting as nursemaids for spoiled children." And at the last place — some sort of a camp—you met dreary girls who were supposed to be mad over athletics but were not, and never a man but the milkman and the hobble-dehoy who left the ice.

And so, Annabelle, you're of two minds. Shall you chance another of these melancholy holidays, or put your vacation money in a bond, a fur coat, or a savings account? Well, my dear, you might do any of those things and be more sure of meeting that almost unknown quantity — an eligible man—than if you continue to fly to some Adamless Eden for your summer holiday.

The happy hunting ground for the girl-shy male is right here in the shadow of the skyscrapers and the baking brick and asphalt of the teeming city. More men are caught in towns during the summer months than flies on flypaper. Bear that in mind, Annabelle.

The type of man regarded as eligible is not found very often at the average summer resort He has to stay dressed up; he has to work like a stevedore dancing with girls in stuffy ballrooms of evenings, and unless he's the shyest of shy violets, he doesn't enjoy being continually mobbed by girls languishing from the usual nine-to-one ratio of girls to met at such places If a man is presentable he'd rather share this terrific competition with others of the male persuasion.

Yes, my dear Annabelle, my suggestion to you is to try the city this time.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Lillian rose from her chair and made me a sweeping curtsy

"Your arrangement is perfect!" she said with generous enthusiasm, "puts it all over mine. It gets all the people who have to be taken care of in set places where we can grab 'em at a second's notice, and groups all the able-bodied guardians in the front of the room, ready to start sounding the alarm siren at any second"

"I'm glad you like it," I said "But I really didn't mean—"

"Don't waste your breath on silly excuses," she said. "We haven't time for 'em We have to make the rounds and explain to everybody that they're to get themselves into a state of preparedness, and about the change in sleeping quarters. Lucky we haven't any silly fussers in the house, and the only neurotic is Ede."

"I think she'll be all right in the face of real emergency," I said. "And if she isn't, Miss Whitlock is a host in herself. She'll manage her."

"Yes, we don't need to worry about that end of it," she agreed "But here's another thought. Now mind you, I don't believe your father thinks there's one chance in a thousand of Jack Leslie's trying to set the house on fire, but very properly he's taking no precautions, and this library wing at the side of the house is the safest place

"I was thinking of Katie's reaction when I tell her to pack her treasures," I said, and she laughed gustily.

"You'll have to limit her," she said. "or we won't be able to squeeze in here. Tell her she can bring the equivalent of two suitcases in here—the rest she'll have to store in the kitchen."

"Both she and I will have something to do before we pack our treasures." "I said with a look around the room. "Ten cots besides Mother Graham's couch, Faith's extra crib and a real bed for Edith have to be set up and made up with bed clothing."

"Yes, I suppose Ede's sick enough to rate a real bed," she said. "but I sure grudge it to her. To think with all the rest of your worries you have that cobra on your hands!"

"Don't let the thought of her bother you," I advised laughing. "She isn't worrying me."

"Well! after all she's your funeral," she said wrinkling her nose at me. "But how come you figure that you and Katie will have this work here to yourselves. I'm an able-bodied person, and so is Mary. And Katrina can park Faith with Mother Graham and press Junior and Roderick into service. They can save us a lot of leg work. Of course the royal women would only be in the way."

"I think Olga would give a good account of herself," I told her. "But—haven't you forgotten that Father strictly stipulated everybody must stay behind locked doors except when summoned to meals? Katharine must stay with the children and he especially doesn't want Mary anywhere outside her room and Noel's protection.

"It had slipped my alleged mind," she said with a rueful grin. "We're going to need stout arms and I don't mean maybe Jim will be busy with the men. I suppose you could call on him for the heaviest lifting."

"We won't need to," I said with decision "There aren't any heavy bed frames or springs, nothing that two able-bodied women can't get downstairs. The work will be tedious, but not back-breaking"

Deplores Demise Of Tales

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

Speaking on the "Value of the Library in the Field of Kindergarten-Primary Education," before the Department of Kindergarten-Primary Education at the summer meeting July 2 of the National Education Association at Milwaukee, I made a plea for the return of the fanciful in the stories read or told the young child. This was in keeping with the pleas for fairy tales Mr. Clarence Sumner and I made in our recent volume, "Books and Babies." To quote from my speech:

"In the writer's judgment, library values at the kindergarten-primary level would increase tremendously if folk lore and fairy tales were brought back. It is amazing how these precious treasures have been snatched away from little children during recent years. In their place have come the factual and the here and now. Mere babies now are supposed to be sophisticated little scientists and to think and talk about realities which only the university student was exposed to years ago.

Chains of Realism.

"This little child must face reality as early as possible and thenceforth forever. Dwarfs, brownies, fairies must be kept away from him and if he should chance upon some of these imaginary creatures clandestinely they are to be torn away from him and chained beyond his reach, with him secure in the field of facts. If the modern little child uses his imagination at all, it is supposed to fit into the conventional patterns of what can be seen, heard, felt, weighed, measured. The average reading text-book for the young child is a penitentiary of facts.

"How long, O Lord, how long will the chains of realism bind the feet of little children, enslaving their imagination. Fortunately a great many babies and young children escape these chains until they get to school, at least. Some, indeed, find a fairyland at school. These children have parents and teachers who believe in fairies and go with the young creator into his enchanted land among the fairies.

Flights of Fancy.

"Normally the child from two to six lives among the fairies He creates with them and enjoys his creations. Instead of hampering his flights of fancy we should further them Fill the baby and young child, therefore, full of fairy tales that lack the fearful Balance this menu of the fanciful with adequate activities with things and play with many other children—for the child's likeableness, happiness and efficiency.

"Of a certain family of three children, all heard fairy tales read to them profusely from the middle of their second year through the primary grades. All excelled later in the factual fields. All participated well in school activities, making the National Honor Society One has a Master's degree in chemistry and a doctor of Philosophy in Plant Physiology, one is a home economist, and the third will enter Massachusetts Institute of Technology in September. Yet, according to the prevailing theory about fairy tales, all these children should have become escapists, day dreamers and social misfits If the little child could be heard he would sing: "Bring back, bring back, Oh, bring back the fairies to me!"

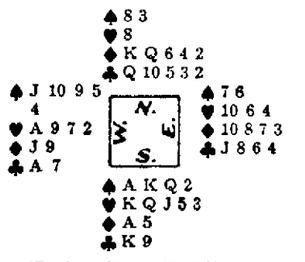
STOP THAT CROWDING

PRUDENT students of the way things work out are cranks about not crowding their partners during the bidding, if they can prevent it Most especially do they seek to avoid pushing the bidding past the 3-No Trumps level if there is any likelihood that the hand should be played at that contract.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	4 NT

Through the pair was using the Blackwood convention, South's 4-No Trumps was obviously a natural bid in this situation, since he had been crowded into it—mainly his own fault. His jump to 3-Spades was very bad bidding, even with his tremendous hand, as a 4-Club or 4-Diamond bid by his partner might well have been necessitated by it. He should have bi donly 2-Spades This "reverse" bid—a higher-ranking suit than his first one—would have been a force to the next level anyway. Then, when North responded with his clubs at three, South could have bone to just 3-No Trumps.

With all that power, South could not find a way to make 4-No Trumps. He took the opened spade J with the Q, led the club K to the A, took the spade 9 with his A, led to the club Q, returned the club 10 to the J and East led the heart 10 to the K and A. The spade 10 then knocked out the last honor of South, who cashed the heart Q and J, then took the three high diamonds. That made nine tricks, but the suit didn't break, so he had to give up the last diamond to East for the setting trick.

Tomorrow's Problem

What is the soundest bidding of this deal?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, August 8

A MODERATELY active and successful state of affairs is read from interesting astral influences. The mind will vibrate to a high pitch of novelty and ingenuity, with the probability of new and strange adventures in which employers or those of financial influence will be disposed to take a generous hand. Nevertheless, there are some indications of disappointment, loss or reversals. And a tendency to be lavish in expenditures should be subdued. Taking a bold chance might prove hazardous.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately successful year if they will be determined about big business coups, either in speculation or perilous investments No time for gambling, although the mind will be strongly bent in the direction of audacious spending, especially in projects of novelty or boldly constructive efforts or inventions.

REAL PROPERTY TAX RECEIPTS AHEAD $63,000

Treasurer Says Collection In County Averages About $8,000 a Day.

With tax receipts averaging approximately $8,000 a day, the last half real estate collection in Richland county looks better daily to County Treasurer John E. Kolb.

Receipts yesterday had mounted to $311,243, more than $63,000 ahead of collections at the same time last year.

Kolb expects the daily receipts to show a big gain from here on to the final collection date, Aug. 20. By that time he hopes to have collected at least $600,000.

The mail receipts, which will not be totaled until after that date, probably will boost the collection for the last half of the year to the highest mark in recent years.

Large industrial firms and public utilities, which usually pay late in the collection period, are expected to boost the receipts next week, the final full week before the tax books close.

The treasurer believes the statements mailed from his office at the beginning of the collection several weeks ago are responsible for a large part of the gain.

It's easier to remember to pay and more convenient to make payments by mail when the property owner receives a statement, showing just how much he owes, Kolb said.

FACES JURY ON GIRL'S CHARGE

Martin Dicker, 21, of 170 Marion avenue, arrested several days ago on a statutory offense, was bound over to common pleas court yesterday in municipal court, under $500 bond.

The affidavit against Dicker, who recently came here from Iowa, was signed by a 19-year-old girl. She and her parents came to Mansfield from Iowa to prosecute the case, court attaches said.

The girl appeared in court yesterday and accused Dicker of being the father of her unborn child. Dicker pleaded innocent. Unable to provide bond he is being held at county jail.

THEATERS

Dramatic Circumstances.

"The Man Who Talked Too Much" is the dramatic story concerning a brilliant young attorney who sends an innocent boy to the chair. Feeling himself guilty and a murderer, he resigns. He becomes rich and famous as the mouthpiece of criminals until the girl who loves him makes him realize the threat to their love. George Brent and Virginia Bruce have the leads in this film at the Ohio.

Eddie Cantor Sings.

Although "The Story of Forty Little Mothers," starring Eddie Cantor, is not a musical in the Cantor sense of the word, it will probably result in one more outstanding hit song. Cantor sings only one number, a lullaby called "Little Curly Hair in a High Chair" to Baby Quintanilla whom he inherits in the story. The cast is composed of Judith Anderson, Ralph Morgan, Diana Lewis, Bonita Granville and Rita Johnson. The co-feature is "South to Karanga."

Vance Mystery Story.

Fiction's most elegant gentleman Pegg returns to the screen in "The Lone Wolf Strikes" with Warren William playing the title role. Created by L. J. Vance, dean of mystery writers, the lighthearted rogue has been made famous on the stage and screen. Joan Perry, Eric Blore and Astrid Allwyn are in the cast. This and the three mesquiteers in "Overland Stage Raiders" will open Thursday at the Park. John Wayne, Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune are in the cast.

Bromfield Story.

"It All Came True," the story written by Louis Bromfield, and starring Ann Sheridan and Jeffrey Lynn, comes to the Ritz Thursday. Ann is seen in one of her best roles and sings "Angel in Disguise" and "Gaucho Serenade." Humphrey Bogart has an important role in the picture of city life. The co-feature attraction is "Carolina Moon," starring Gene Autry.

Senate Studies Probe of Firm's Political Activity

EXECUTIVE OF CHAIN DENIES 'SANDBAGGING'

Asserts Request For Willkie Donation Went to Only Few Employes.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Senate investigation of charges that a big retail corporation was "sandbagging" employes for Republican campaign contributions appeared assured today in the midst of dispute over spending limitations imposed by the Hatch "clean politics" act.

Chairman Guy M. Gillette of the senate campaign expenditures committee said he would submit to that group a letter from an unnamed S. S. Kresge Co. employe asserting that Kresge Vice President C. B. Tuttle had circularized employes with a request for contributions to the presidential campaign of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee.

Tuttle said in Detroit that his letter went to fewer than one per cent of the company's employes and "only to key men in the state of Michigan." No women employes were circularized, he said.

Coincidentally Attorney General Robert H. Jackson proposed amendment of the Hatch act to strengthen its limitation of $3,000,000 upon the spending by any political committee in any one year. Sen. Carl A. Hatch, D., N. M., author of the legislation, said he was in "hearty accord with the stand taken by Mr. Jackson. He added that he would draft an introduce amendments carrying out Jackson's request as soon as possible. He said he would press for their adoption at this session.

The controversy over the Hatch act started early this week when Henry P. Fletcher, general counsel of the Republican national committee, pointed out that the contributions to local committees were legal and that the limit on each of as many committees as might be formed would be $3,000,000.

Jackson and others denounced that as a plan for "evasion" of the act although Willkie already had announced at his Colorado Springs vacation headquarters that his campaign expenses would be held to approximately $2,500,000 or $500,000 short of the Hatch act maximum.

Tuttle Promises Increased Efforts

DETROIT —(INS)— Threatened with a senatorial investigation because he is soliciting funds from his employes for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, Carl B. Tuttle, vice president and treasurer of the S. S. Krege company, of Detroit, today promised increased efforts on Willkie's behalf.

"Instead of withdrawing my appeal for funds, I will double my efforts on behalf of Willkie," declared Tuttle when told of the demand of Senator James F. Byrnes (D., S. C.) for an investigation of the Detroit merchant because he asked employes to help raise funds for the Republican campaign.

"I know of no law preventing individuals from contributing to a political campaign," he said. "Corporations cannot, and the Kresge company obeys the law."

Lewis Forecasts Forming of Labor Political Party

DENVER, Col. — (INS — CIO Chieftain John L. Lewis today was on record with another prediction that the ranks of labor will one day form their own political party.

Without mentioning names, Lewis bitterly assailed the administration last night for advocating conscription, and asserted that "some day labor will lose faith in the two major parties to the point where it will go out and organize its own party."

Addressing the annual convention of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, Lewis declared:

"Politicians in power and those who seek office pay too little attention to the wishes and demands of the men and women who comprise labor. Labor can indorse some man today and tomorrow he'll come out and kick labor in the face by advocating conscription, just like that."

Representing one of the largest enrollments in years, the instruction program is held weekly at the Casino park pool, the Children's home pool and the Shelby municipal pool. The program closes Labor day.

Does anyone have any idea how many Mansfielders go to Canada for summer vacations? Over at the board of elections A. F. Porter, and Walter Underwood, clerk and deputy clerk, are starting on their third hundred certificates of citizenship for Canadian vacationists. They have given out 200 certificates and this morning started on another hundred. While a few Mansfielders have not been asked to prove citizenship at the border when re-entering this country, Porter says that many of them have been. The certificates certify the holder to be an elector and a citizen of Richland county.

After spending the summer vacationing in Mansfield and taking daily workouts at the Y. M. C. A., Mansfield's acrobatic team of Ray Turner and Trentis Barney, left for New York on Monday of this week where they are scheduled to begin a theater tour. The team begins its tour tomorrow with an engagement at the Radio City Music hall.

Council's "No" man, George C. Kyle, startled fellow legislators at last night's session when he popped up with a motion for approval of $200 appropriation to finance the city's share of $40,000 NYA airport improvement project almost before Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., had finished reading the measure. Several recalled that it was about a year ago that Kyle suggested selling part of the flying field, terming it the "tail of a white elephant."

NO AMENDMENTS APPEAR LIKELY

Deadline Reached Today For Filing Proposals For November Vote.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The deadline for qualifying constitutional amendment proposals for the Nov. 5 election arrived today with indications that none of the suggested changes would find a place on the ballot.

Petitions bearing 240,000 signatures are required to place a proposed constitutional amendment before the voters.

Associates of Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati disclosed that the old age pension advocate had abandoned his plans to resubmit his guaranteed income proposal to the voters this fall. The plan would assure single persons more than 60 years old $50 a month and married couples $80. It was defeated overwhelmingly at the polls last November.

Previously, advocates of an amendment calling for redistricting the state for the election of senators and representatives announced their willingness to delay the issue. Sponsored chiefly by urban groups, the proposal was designed to give metropolitan districts greater representation in the state legislature.

Another suggested amendment would remove administration of old age pensions from the welfare department and place it with an independent four-member commission. The plan, supported by the Ohio Society to Aid the Aged, would allot pensions on the basis of need up to a $40 monthly maximum.

ROAD CLOSED

Start Work of Improving Ontario-Shelby Highway.

Work of resurfacing a portion of the Shelby-Ontario road started yesterday, restricting traffic to one way driving on the thoroughface, according to County Engineer Howard Sword.

One and four-tenths mile of road north of Ontario is being resurfaced with two inches of black top over the old concrete. Sword said the road had been broken up last year when the state used it as a detour while water lines were being laid on West Fourth street.

Gravel and labor are being furnished by WPA, with the county engineer's office providing supervision. Sword said the project could be completed by Monday if weather conditions permit.

PLANTS BUILT FOR LONG LIFE BEING PLANNED

Shortage of Labor Proving Problem In Development Of New Program.

WASHINGTON — A permanent munitions industry, owned largely by the federal government and capable of supplying an army of 2,000,000 men, emerged today as one of the major goals of the defense program.

Robert P. Patterson, new assistant secretary of war, described as an "innovation" the idea that most of the projected 60 ordnance plants to be built with government funds would be established on a permanent basis.

Traditionally, the United States has maintained a system of government arsenals which formed the nucleus of a munitions industry but which was not capable of rapid expansion in an emergency.

To prepare better for future crises, Patterson said that the new powder, loading and storage plants would be designed for long life. He made it plain, however, that they would be operated only for such periods as are necessary to prepare the required stocks of munitions.

The army already has been given $244,000,000 of the $700,000,000 required for the new plants and has contracted with the Dupont interests to operate a $25,000,000 powder plant in southern Indiana. A shortage of labor capable of manning the necessary loading plants is proving something of a problem, Patterson said, adding that one or two such plants probably would be the next for which contracts would be let.

"We want to be sure of a source of supply for the forces we already have," he explained. The rest of the program would come along more slowly, he said.

Discussing the army's decision to locate the new plants chiefly in the area between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi, Patterson said they not only would have greater protection from enemy air attack, but the requisite supplies of water and coal needed for powder manufacture could best be obtained in relatively few parts of the country.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's difficult to understand why Claire Trevor, on the verge of stardom so many times, never has made it.

What I mean is real stardom, the kind that Irene Dunne, Claudette Colbert and a few others enjoy—the kind that Claire Trevor has earned.

She was there, for sure, after "Stagecoach," but nothing much happened. Before "Stagecoach," her Francey in "Dead End" raised her from rating as Queen of the B's. Those pictures stand out in memory, looking back over a career that has been for the most part B-ish.

It may be that she's too good-natured for real stardom. Right now, she's busy being Mrs. Clark Andrews (he's a radio executive) and doing her weekly air show with Don Ameche. She looks over scripts for movies, and once in a while she lets herself be talked into doing one—but not since "Stagecoach" has she had the sort of role she really likes.

"I've done all the wisecracking secretaries in the book," she puts it. "The role is fairly standardized now, and what can you do with it? Then there are the walk-through-the-picture heroines. No more of those for Trevor, either. I'm going to play nothing except parts I can get really excited about."

But that was the way she felt last Christmas when they wanted her for "The Dark Command." If you saw it, you know it wasn't a Trevor part; it was a role any blonde (or a girl with green hair, for that matter) could have done. Just the nice girl who quarreled with the hero and married the wrong man and finally saw the light. It didn't need the distinctive, husky Trevor voice; it didn't need even an actress, when you get down to it. So Claire read it, and said no.

They said, wouldn't she just come to a story conference and talk about it? So she went, determined to be firm, and left with her name on a contract.

There's little that's more discouraging (unless it's being outside pictures entirely) when you want to be in) than status as Queen of the B's. Claire flew out from a stage play with a contract for her first role—with George O'Brien in "Life in the Raw." There was "The Mad Game" with Spencer Tracy, and then a ceaseless procession of B's — comedy, melodrama, sob-stuff and bathos. The Trevor B's always had something, which was mainly Trevor, I suspect, for the girl's fan mail grew and it keeps coming. Its tone, frequently, is one of fanatic loyalty.

Once, in days when Claire cared more about the career business, she thought she had an A-part. She was dressed for a dinner date when the studio called about this "big opportunity" in an A. She rushed over. The "big opportunity" was a minor role in "Second Honeymoon" with Ty Power and Loretta Young—a part that required only a girl who knew how to stand around. No other girl was available, and Trevor was good-natured. She took it. The big chance came later when she was borrowed for "Dead End," and there have been nothing but A's (in budget at least) ever since.

Still, she hasn't won what she's earned—grade-A stardom.

Tigers Trip Browns

Newsom Registers 14th Win By Stopping St. Louis; Yanks Lose to Red Sox.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

AFTER one day in the doghouse the Detroit Tigers are on top of the American league again and big Buck Newsom is back in the win column.

The showboat doesn't have a full head of steam yet but, with a little boost from Archie McKain, he conquered the St. Louis Browns 6-2 last night for his 14th victory of the year.

Newsom pitched seven-hit ball, but walked eight men and in the ninth inning he filled the bases with two out. McKain stepped in and fanned Walt Judnich to end the game.

The Tigers now appear to have the best pitching in the league and the records show without question that they have the best batting.

The Cleveland Indians divided a doubleheader to back out of the momentary margin they had assumed Monday. Lefty Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox pitched his second successive two-hitter to whip the Tribe 5-1 in the first game, but Cleveland edged out a 3-2 decision in the nightcap with Bob Feller saving the game for Johnny Allen.

Sid Hudson, Washington's big pickup from the Class D Florida State league who had pitched another one-hitter earlier in the season, shut out the Philadelphia Athletics 11-0, missing a no-hitter when Sam Chapman singled in the seventh.

The New York Yankees fell apart again as they dropped their fourth straight game, 8-3 to the Red Sox. Boston made 14 hits and was aided by two Yankee errors.

None of the first division clubs in the National league got into action yesterday, and the Pittsburgh Pirates took advantage of the lull to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 and move into a tie for fifth place.

The Boston Bees, who couldn't win themselves a few days ago, plastered a double licking on the Phillies 3-0 and 12-2 for Philadelphia's sixth straight setback.

Conn Faces Real Test

Billy Conn of Pittsburgh, the light heavyweight champion, who is outgrowing that division, will tackle Heavyweight Bob Pastor of New York in a bout Aug. 13 in New York. It'll mark the first time Conn has met a leading heavyweight. Pastor has met Joe Louis twice, losing one match on a decision and the other on a knockout.

Alta Lumber Issue Challenge to Moose

Manager Pete Schadek of the Alta Lumber company softball team issued a challenge today to the unbeaten Moose Lodge club. Schadek indicated he would use Dale McKinley, star righthander, if the Moose softballers, who have won 12 consecutive games, accepts the challenge. The Alta pilot will play a single game or a three-game series.

Columbus Combine Will Test Undefeated Hermans Sunday

FACED with one of the biggest assignments of the season, the undefeated Sons of Herman went back to the practice field today to prepare for the invasion of the dangerous Speedway A. C. team of Columbus in a benefit softball doubleheader at Liberty park Sunday.

The twin bill will be staged for John Stash, 32, widely-known Mansfield athlete, who is in ill health. The collection will be turned over to him to help defray expenses of a trip to the west for his health.

The Capital City outfit, one of the outstanding colored combines in the state, should be a real test for the Hermans, who have chalked up 17 straight triumphs.

Manager Frank Beeler's crack club marked up its most impressive wins of the season recently by beating the Mansfield Wrecking Company All-Stars three consecutive games in a series for the city championship.

Sunday's twin bill will swing into action at 2 p. m. with Jim Fullager, ace righthander, handling the mound duties. Freddie Carver or Harold Geiger will be available for the nightcap.

Braves Invade Fremont for Tilt Tonight

The Mansfield Braves open a series with the Fremont Green Sox at Fremont today and Bob Arnold will be Manager Dewey Stover's choice to handle the mound assignment.

Mansfield returns to the fairground to engage the Green Sox in a double header Thursday night. Rex Benton and Tony Angaran are expected to be Stover's choices to pitch. The first game will start at 7 p. m., Braves officials stated today.

The Braves were scheduled to meet Fostoria in a single Ohio State league game at the Fairground last night, but rain forced postponement of the tussle.

Allen Scores Win

Stops Chicago, 3-2 In Nightcap; Al Smith Hurls Today.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — The Cleveland Indians started wooing fickle first place again today.

By splitting a double bill with the White Sox yesterday, the Tribe dropped a half game behind Detroit which set down St. Louis.

Manager Oscar Vitt sent out Al Smith, who has 11 conquests to his credit this season, to lure the leadership back and make it three out of four in the windup of the series with Chicago. Johnny Rigney was Smith's rival.

The courtship during the rest of the stretch drive looked less arduous after Johnny Allen's impressive return to the role of starting pitcher. In his first start since June 19, he held the Sox to seven hits and was credited with the 3 to 2 nightcap victory after his mates lost the opener, 5 to 1.

It was the sixth triumph for Allen—deprived of a shutout as Jeff Heath muffed a fly ball to let in two White Sox runs in the ninth. Before that, Johnny had given way to Bob Feller who took over when two were out and two on bases in the last inning.

Cleveland scored in the first on Roy Weatherly's double and Lou Boudreau's single. Allen started the two-run rally in the third with a double, followed with singles by Weatherly, Boudreau and Hal Trosky. The Tribe collected all its 10 safe blows off Bill Dietrich before he yielded to Clint Brown at the end of the seventh.

* * *

Lou Boudreau drove in the Indians' only run in the first game as Lefty Lee held the Redmen to two hits. Boudreau's single scored Ben Chapman who had walked and advanced to second on Weatherly's infield out. Al Milnar allowed all nine of the Sox' hits before retiring in favor of Johnny Humphries at the end of the seventh.

Kinnick and Anderson Are Teamed for All-Star Tilt

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, scourge of professional football, have a date with trouble Aug. 29.

That's the night the pro champions line up in Solder Field against a "dream squad" of collegians having their last fling at football glory as amateur gridders.

The game, which usually attracts 80,000 spectators, will reunite for a night the famed and feared Iowa combination of Coach Eddie Anderson and his dazzling triple-threat halfback, Nile Kinnick.

Anderson was selected as head coach of the All-Stars in a nationwide poll. In a similar contest Kinnick was designated as a starter in the game, polling more votes than any other player.

Assisting Anderson in handling the All-Star squad of 67 players will be Don Faurot, Missouri; Buck Shaw, Santa Clara; E. E. (Tad) Wieman, Princeton, and Lowell (Red) Dawson, Tulane. Each earned his spot on the staff by leading the voting in their respective sections.

The Packers, who won their fifth pro title last fall, and the All-Stars will begin practice next Monday, giving each squad two and a half weeks for conditioning exercises.

Kinnick's running mate on the starting eleven chosen by the fans will be Lou Brock of Purdue with Ambrose Schindler of Southern California at quarterback and Joe Thesing of Notre Dame at full.

At ends will be Bill Fisk of Southern California and Esco Sarkkinen, Ohio State. Nick Cutlich, Northwestern, and Joe Boyd, Texas Aggies, were named tackles; Harry Smith, Southern California, and Jim Logan, Indiana, guards, and Clyde Turner, Hardin-Simmons, center.

Two previous games ended in ties, the All-Stars won two and the pros two.

PLAYER RECOVERS

FREMONT —(AP)— The highlight of catcher Bill Lance's 20th birthday yesterday was an ambulance trip here from the Fostoria city hospital. The Fremont Green Sox backstop received a skull fracture when struck by a pitched ball in a State league game last Friday.

DESPITE a 2 to 1 defeat handed them yesterday by the second-place Richland Printers, the Long Bar foursome still maintained a comfortable six-point lead in The News-Journal Class "A" golf league race today.

Out of the three matches played by the two top teams yesterday at Possum Run, two went into extra holes. John Kleshinski of the Printers finally downed Johnny Carr in one extra hole, while Oscar Frantz of the Long Bar took three additional holes to gain a decision over Harry Schlegel of the Printers.

Pete Linster of the Richland club tallied a blistering 34 for a two under par to defeat Carl Kushin of the Long Bar, who netted a 41. The match between Ray Oakes of the Printers and Harry Fay of the Long Bar was postponed.

Low-scoring honors went to Steve Stirtzinger of the Mansfield Athletic Supply yesterday, who carded a 33 for three under par. Next in line was Pete Linster with 34 and Rollie Rachel of the Oak's club with a 35.

Al Kushin, Mansfield Athletic Supply, Joe Mayer, Barnes and Schmid Tires, Pete Zeides, Nite club and Chuck Snyder, Yuncker Brothers, chalked up 37's for the nine holes. Nick Linster, Oak's club, and Gene Zediker, Tires, tallied 38's.

Oak's club and Barnes and Schmid Tires scored a 1 to 1 tie, while Mansfield Athletic Supply walloped the Nite club 4 to 1 and Yuncker Brothers took over the Sloan's Drugs 2 to 0 to complete yesterday's card.

Clark Says Some Top-Notch Players Will Make Rams Tough

By BILL WHITE

NEW YORK —(AP)— Know why the kids in the metropolitan ball parks pray for triples rather than homers? Because every one hit entitles 10 underprivileged children to two weeks in the country—as guests of the refrigeration industry. The Children's Welfare Federation selects 'em. The good old underprivileged Dodgers hit 11 in July to 7 apiece for the Jints and Yanks.

It costs $960 to start a horse in the Hambletonian, the Kentucky derby of the trotting world . . . Dutch Clark says some top-notch replacements will make the Cleveland Rams a real threat. He's particularly proud of Clarence Gherke, ex-Utah U. ace.

FROM THE MAILBAG

"This is the 14th anniversary of my channel swim. Maybe if I'd try it now I could hang onto a submarine and save some physical effort. But I'm glad I made it when I did—I had a sporting chance for a safe landing"—Gertrude (Trudy) Ederle.

Dick Cullum, sports ed of the Minneapolis Times-Tribune, has folks out there all upset over the possibility that Bernie Bierman, being a marine major in the reserves, may be training a battalion of leathernecks this fall, and not the Golden Gophers. However, he softens the blow by pointing out that Bernie's capable assistants leave the school still "abundantly equipped" . . . Ringsiders say Billy Conn is punching harder than ever and that left hook to the mid-riff is a lollapalooza.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Art Edson, Oklahoma City Times headline writer, for his classic head, "Poisoned Oakie" on the story telling about Don McNeill, Oklahoma City's gift to the tennis ranks, suffering from poison oak.

They're picking Oklahoma Aggies to win the Mizzou valley football title, and the cry in the Big Six is "Beat Nebraska" which Oklahoma U. may do . . . Davis and Elkins has the country's youngest head coach—Jesse Paul Kniley, who's only 23 . . . Clemson's tutoring staff averages only 28.

Redlegs Face Chicago Cubs

Derringer Will Try to Snap Streak.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Well rested after a long pull, the Cincinnati Reds try again today to open their short home stand against the Chicago Cubs, with Paul Derringer getting the job of snapping the National League champions out of their slump.

Derringer, out for his eighth straight victory and 17th of the year, replaces Gene Thompson, who was Manager Bill McKechnie's choice for yesterday's rained-out game. Gene is still limping from the spoke wound suffered in the free-for-all at Brooklyn two weeks ago and McKechnie figured a little more rest would do no harm.

Gabby Hartnett is depending on Bill Lee, who has dropped three games to the Reds so far this year.

On an apparent theory that the lineup that beat the bothersome Boston Bees in the last game of that disastrous series can beat anybody, McKechnie plans to use it again against the Cubs. That puts Mike DeJan, the "good-hit-no-field" rookie from Chattanooga, in left field.

Mike turned in a triple and single against the Bees and the same would be handy against the Cubs.

The Reds, who have taken nine of the dozen games played with the Cubs, close the present series tomorrow with Bucky Walters making his fourth effort to win his 16th game of the year.

PREDICT M'NEILL WILL BE NEXT NET CHAMPION

RYE, N. Y. —(AP)— Don McNeill of Oklahoma City as next national tennis champion is the prediction of Hal Surface, Kansas City veteran who has seen the best and is ranked 12th nationally now. Both won second round matches in the eastern grass courts championship. McNeill eliminating Larry Dee of Los Angeles 6-3, 6-0 and Surface trouncing Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, last year's "wonder boy of tennis," 6-0, 6-3.

PRICES CLING DOGGEDLY NEAR PREVIOUS MARK

Stock Pendulum Wavers and Sticks at Old Level On Wary Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Prices clung doggedly near previous levels in a wary, scant stock market today.

Whether Great Britain could withstand the shock of the German attempt at invasion, generally believed to be impending, was the outstanding question.

Representative of the general market movement were the various positions assumed by the steels during the day. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem moved by fractions both below and above yesterday's levels. The same applied to Union Carbide, General Motors and Montgomery Ward. Generally on the downside were DuPont, Eastman Westinghouse and Southern Railway.

Bonds and commodities followed irregular price trends.

The possibility of heightened interest in metal shares was foreshadowed by a reduction of ½ cent a pound to 11 cents in the price of copper.

The latter, as measured by the Associated Press in a seasonally adjusted index, advanced in the past week to 132.5—a new 1940 high—from 131.5 the preceding week, compared with 120.1 a year ago.

Carloadings were estimated unofficially to have held in the past week at the previous week's level of 718,489 cars.

HOME GUARD GAINS FAVOR

Senate Approaches Vote on Bill For Training of National Guard.

to be settled, Sheppard said.

Senate debate on the national guard bill was interrupted yesterday by a fiery argument between Senators Holt (D-W. Va.) and Minton (D-Ind.) in which the words "liar" and "slacker" were shouted, but leaders set a time limit on speeches in order to get a vote late today.

Passage of the measure would clear the way for opening debate tomorrow on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill, which is expected to produce a long and heated controversy.

Senator Burke (D-Neb.), one of the authors, said he thought the real test would come on a substitute submitted by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.). He said a "close vote" was in prospect.

Maloney would delay a selective draft until attempts had been made to obtain sufficient manpower through voluntary enlistments for a year, open to men from 18 through 34.

Rep. Faddis (D-Pa.) threw a house committee meeting into an uproar yesterday with charges that "fifth columnists" and Nazi agents were fostering opposition to the legislation. The house committee voted to conclude hearings and prepared to work on the bill in closed session.

In the senate, Minton precipitated a heated exchange when he arose to shout, after Holt had attacked the conscription bill, that he was "getting impatient with being lectured by a slacker family."

Holt quickly dubbed "malicious lies" Minton's charges that Holt's father had opposed sending food to the soldiers in France in the World war and Minton's assertion that Holt's brother had been "hidden away" in South America at that time to avoid the draft.

"If ever the administration wants filth to be thrown," Holt added, "they get the senator from Indiana to throw it."

"And," Minton shot back, "when Hitler wants it thrown, you throw it."

"No, no, not at all," Holt replied.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, quieted this outburst, but the argument between the two was resumed later.

Holt told the senate that "the alien doctrine of conscription came from foreign shores and was incubated in the banks and law firms of Wall Street."

FASCISTS OPEN AFRICAN DRIVE TO SUEZ CANAL

Three Italian Columns Try To Cut Path Toward Gulf of Aden.

sharpens the likelihood of full-scale African warfare for great stakes: control of the Suez canal and hegemony over the ancient land which once was the granary of imperial Rome.

But not since 969 A. D., when the Fatimities conquered Egypt, has a successful invasion been launched from the west, as the Italians now are attempting from Libya. The Fatimities, a west African Mohammedan dynasty, succeeded only on the third attempt.

Geography militates against an invader. All the western land of Egypt is a great desert, a country of dry defiles, of mountainous sand dunes that "walk" with the wind, of shriveling 120-degree temperatures by day and 40-degree chills by night.

Since the Fatimities' exploit, invasion from the west has been attempted only once—the unsuccessful attack by the Senussi brotherhood of tribesmen in 1915-16.

Stirred up by German and Turkish agents, the Senussi struck toward the western Egyptian coastal town of Mersa Matruh. The British, however, scattered the foe with heavy losses.

Those tribesmen, while equipped by experience for desert warfare, were relatively few; a new question is whether a modern, mechanized army can win through the 400 miles from the border to the rich cities of the Nile.

The forces at Britain's disposal are acknowledged to to be somewhat smaller than the Italian white and native armies but they are specialists in desert fighting.

When Italy entered the war against Britain on June 10, Premier Mussolini said that Egypt had nothing to fear as long as she remained neutral. But Egypt, bound by an alliance with Britain, severed relations with Italy and announced she would go to war if attacked. Despite the Italian announcement of invasion, however, Egypt did not immediately declare war.

Her western border has no natural barriers—except the desert. But the keys to the west are the five large oases of Siwa, Baharia, Farafra, Dakhla and Kharga.

The Nile valley and delta, contrasting greenly with the yellowed desert, is a rich source of food and cotton. In the desert which is 14-15ths of Egypt there are manganese, nitrates, phosophates and precious stones.

Mussolini could use all those things, but to get them he would have to conquer a country of 386,000 square miles — more than three times the size of the British Isles, and with a population of about 15,000,000.

Apparently timed with the Egyptian invasion is the Italian thrust into British Somaliland, 2,000 miles southeast of the mouth of the Nile.

In that craggy area, along the Red Sea, the Gulf or Aden and the Indian ocean, the Italians are reported to have another 250,000 men, including many natives.

British hold British Somaliland to be of little strategic value. They point out that Italian Somaliland already fronts on the Gulf of Aden, and Italian Eritrea on the Red Sea, so that the Suez canal entrance would be in no more danger even if British Somaliland fell.

Geography would seem to preclude any strong drive against Suez from the east, such as the Turks tried in the World war. In that campaign, in 1915, the Turks were beaten off in a daring attempt to storm the canal.

CAPITAL HEARS VERBAL BLASTS

Bitterness Breaks Out In Congressional Debate Over Defense.

active have been Gen. John J. Pershing; secretary of War Stimson; Chairman Sheppard, of the senate military affairs committee; Chairman Key Pittman, of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senators Pepper (D. Fla.), Lee (D. Okla.), and Minton (D. Ind.)

The bitterness reached its peak in the senate during the last 48 hours when Pepper accused Lindbergh of being "the chief of the fifth column in this country," while Minton was charging Holt with coming from a family of World war "slackers."

Replies made to these and similar attacks that have occurred in the last two months uniformly have included charges of fealty to Britain, "inciting war hysteria," and a desire to lead the United States into war.

Actually, the opposing forces claim objectives far different from those attributed to them by each other. The Lindbergh-Wheeler-Woodring followers state that theirs is only a movement to keep the United States out of war.

The Pershing-Stimson-Pittman group contends its only aim is to make certain this country is adequately prepared to defend itself against possible invasion.

But out of it all, the wedge between them is being driven deeper and deeper, and the gall and wormwood is being split with more and more bitterness daily.

Contemporary historians, meanwhile, furrow their brows and recall that only a scant 24 years ago, the nation's history was being written in a vitriol that was strikingly parallel.

A fourth case was scheduled for Morris's court today. John Landis of near Shelby was to appear to answer to charges of failing to stop his automobile for a stop sign on route 96 east of Shelby. He was arrested Tuesday by state highway patrolmen.

for bids and enter into a contract for either penny or nickel meters. It does not specify whether the machines shall be automatic or manually operated. Neither does it specify the number of machines to be installed.

C. N. Shultz told Council President Howard G. Miller that Crafton had requested the appointment of a committee, including members of the street and finance committees, to assist him in drafting specifications concerning the type of meter to be purchased and in designating the meter zones.

Miller said the committee would be named before the next council meeting, possibly at a special session sometime this month.

The ordinance provides that the parking meters shall be under the supervision of the police department and that all funds above cost of maintenance, derived from the machines shall be used exclusively for the regulation and control of traffic on city streets.

Crafton ordered Police Chief Meade K. Bates to notify all taxicab companies that parking or stopping the wrong way on city streets to pick up or discharge passengers would not be tolerated. He told Bates to see that the order was enforced.

The service director was prompted to action yesterday afternoon when his attention was called to snarled traffic at Walnut street and Park avenue west due to a taxicab which had pulled to the left of the street to pick up a passenger.

Authorizes $30,250 Issue to Pay Property Owners' Share Of Street Improvements.

The city's bonded indebtedness went up $30,250 today to underwrite the property owners' share of the cost of improvements on 12 streets.

Anticipating the collection of special assessments, council last night authorized a bond issue of $22,250 to pay the property owners' share of improvements made last year on nine streets and approved the issuance of $8,000 in notes to underwrite improvements planned on three streets this summer.

The improvements made last year include the paving of Woodward, Lawnview and Fairlawn avenues, the resurfacing of Second and Augustine avenues, and the construction of curbs and gutters on Coleman road, and the construction of sanitary sewers on sections of Chilton avenue, Cook road and an alley north of Ashland road.

Issuance of notes were approved to finance the construction of a sanitary sewer on Park avenue west and Glenbeck lane and on Overlook avenue, and the grading and graveling of Lind avenue from Ohio street to Albert street.

Estimates on the three projects total $8,330 with the city's share of the cost set at $330.

Legislation authorizing the improvements was approved last night and authorizes Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to call for bids on the projects.

Preliminary legislation authorizing the paving of Walter avenue from Sturges avenue to Wood street was also approved. Final action approving the construction will be taken at the Sept. 3 meeting.

Council also approved legislation establishing grades on Glenwood Heights avenue and Harter avenue south of Chilton avenue.

The petition proposed to dedicate and improve in return a 40-foot street 221 feet east of Wayne street between East Third and Fourth street. The vacation of Wayne street is sought for the construction of a new $480,000 warehouse building which will be started in September.

Also received was a request for one-way traffic restriction on an alley east of Main street between North Park and East third street.

The sewer committee was given a request for construction of a sanitary sewer on Lawndale street between McPherson and Burns street.

The water committee was handed a request for construction of a water line on the same street.

British Negotiate for Record Munitions Purchase

ASK ARTILLERY TANKS, OTHER WAR SUPPLIES

'Hundreds of Millions of Dollars' Involved In Latest Program.

WASHINGTON — The British government started negotiations here today for "hundreds of millions of dollars" of tanks, artillery, and other war supplies in addition to all previous Allied orders.

Arthur B. Purvis, chief British purchasing agent, who presented the program to treasury Secretary Morgenthau, told reporters that his government was seeking many types of supplies not previously purchased in this country. He emphasized tanks and field artillery.

The British previously bought some old artillery that the United States army had left over from the World war, but the new program is for new weapons.

He declined to estimate to what figure the new program might expand total British purchases in this country, but previous purchases, mostly airplanes, amounted to well over $1,000,000,000.

The British agent went on to explain that the new program was for material to be delivered a considerable time in the future.

He indicated that previous purchases had been made, to a large extent, on the basis of immediate needs, and that new programs were being shaped on anticipated future needs.

Tells Britain To Enlarge War Policy

LONDON—(AP)—A government spokesman told Britain today that to win the war she must now "embark on a much more extensive program which must be related to the American national defense preparations."

Arthur Greenwood, Laborite minister without portfolio, speaking in the House of Commons on Britain's wartime economic problems, said:

"The need to supplement our own production by drawing upon the vast and invulnerable capacity of North America has immensely increased since the fall of France."

"While but a few months ago we were placing orders with American industry to supplement the deficiencies in combined Allied production," Greenwood declared, "we now need to embark on a much more extensive program which must be related to the American defense preparations."

Greenwood said there had been organized a committee composed of himself as chairman, Neville Chamberlain and Sir Kingsley Wood to direct the nation's economic war policy.

Greenwood, Laborite member of the war cabinet, said Germany and the territories she has overrun are facing famine this winter and that next spring the pinch will be even worse.

"Hitler cannot add starvation to slavery without running the grave risk of revolution within his own territory," he said.

Greenwood said some of Germany's chief industrial areas and airdromes had "suffered very heavy punishment" from British fliers and the "output undoubtedly is seriously interfered with."

Favor Roosevelt Plan to Use Vets For 'Home Guard'

President Roosevelt's suggestion today that veterans of the World war take over the duties of home guard work if, and when, National Guards are called out for training, was given the stamp of approval here by representatives of veterans organizations.

R. B. Gardner, state commander of the American Legion, said he was familiar with the proposal which had been discussed by the president and the national commander of the Legion some time ago, and that while there were certain phases of it that would have to be ironed out, he was in favor of World war veterans forming home guards over the United States.

"We of the American Legion are just as willing to serve today as we were in 1917," he said, "and if our commander-in-chief (President Roosevelt) wants us to serve in home guard capacity, then that's the way we will serve. We not only believe in the American way of living, but we are willing to defend it."

Hollis Moorhead, commander of Alfred I. Harrington Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, said he wasn't familiar with the details of the proposal, on the face of it, he thought it was "a very good idea."

"Every veteran who went through the World war and who still has his health wants to be of some service in the present emergency," he said, "and if they are asked to make up a home guard, I think they will do it with enthusiasm."

Whooping Cough Tops Mansfield List of Diseases

Topped by a wave of whooping cough which has been sweeping Richland county the past six weeks, communicable diseases in Mansfield during July showed more than a 40 per cent increase over June. Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner told the board of health at a meeting last night.

Dr. Rehder said that a total of 127 cases of contagious diseases were reported to the health department last month as compared to 92 cases in June.

He said the increase was represented chiefly by 89 cases of whooping cough as against 48 reported within the city during June. The July total brings to 236 the number of cases of the disease reported in Mansfield since Jan. 1.

All other communicable diseases showed decreased in July. There were 11 cases of venereal disease, five measles, four scarlet fever, two chickenpox, three tuberculosis, and one each of malaria, mumps, pneumonia and rabies.

FLOWERS ESTATE RETURNS TO COURT AS HEIRS FIGHT APPEAL

Motions filed yesterday brought back into court the 21-year-old estate of Jacob Flowers which has been in litigation since 1933 and which affects 118 heirs and several charitable institutions. In the past six years the case has been in the county courts three times, before the court of appeals and the state supreme court.

The motions yesterday were filed by C. L. Flowers, Clarence E. Flowers, J. L. Flowers, heirs and Edward J. Metcalfe, former executor of the estate. The motions, which ask dismissal of the appeal filed last year by the charitable institutions, were heard by Judge Marion B. Owen of Urbana, in the absence of Judge C. H. Huston.

Flowers, a Sandusky township former, died in 1918 leaving a $30,000 estate to his widow for her life use. The widow died in 1933, at which time, according to the will of her husband, the estate was to be divided among several charitable institutions, including the Mansfield Salvation Army.

The heirs contested the will and the Ohio Supreme court upheld their contention. At one stage in the legal battle Judge C. J. Anderson ordered distribution of the estate to the heirs, but the Galion Good Samaritan hospital and the Methodist children home at Worthington, named in the will filed an appeal.

The case is now back in Richland county for the third time. Judge Owens asked attorneys in the case for further briefs.

The 118 heirs are scattered aver 14 states from Ohio to California and one Canadian province. The Flowers estate was largely real estate including a 125-acre farm in Sandusky township.

ROOSEVELT MAPS NEW TOUR; WILLKIE FINISHES ADDRESS

(By United Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—President Roosevelt made plans today to inspect another part of the national defense in a "non-political" tour that may carry him into New England.

Following up his disclosure that he is planning home guard units around former war veterans, the president is expected to leave the summer white house late this week to inspect navy bases.

Although Mr. Roosevelt said detailed plans for his inspection are not ready for announcement, it was believed that he would visit the submarine base at New London, Conn., the navy yard at Boston, Mass., and other major naval establishments.

Mr. Roosevelt extended his defense planning, apparently on the assumption that congress will grant him authorization to call the national guard units into active service. He disclosed that plans are under way to organize local home defense units to insure protection of vital localities while the national guard units are in service elsewhere.

COMPLETES SPEECH

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(U.P.)—Wendell L. Willkie settled down today to winding up his formal acceptance address, of which sections dealing with agriculture and military conscription have not been finished.

When the Republican presidential nominee completed his speech, his aides said, he would be ready to map his campaign itinerary and make other final preparations. He has arranged to confer next week with Alf M. London, the GOP's 1936 presidential candidate.

Willkie's aides said that he probably would also see former President Herbert Hoover before he left for Elwood, Ind., to deliver his speech August 17. It was generally believed that Willkie and Hoover might spend a day or so in some Montana mountain lodge, discussing campaign issues and strategy.

The candidate returned to Colorado Springs late yesterday by airplane after a vigorous sally into the home state of Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture and the Democratic vice presidential nominee. He said that he had been "delighted" at the reception that he received from more than 60 farm leaders at a conference.

Willkie said that he wanted to preserve the present New Deal farm program until a better one "is gradually involved."

JAP SHIPS SAIL

HONGKONG—(AP)—Local British newspapers reported today that Japanese warships and transports had been sighted steaming southward toward Formosa, but authoritative sources said there was no indication whether the vessels were proceeding to Japanese-occupied Swatow or Canton or elsewhere.

COUNCIL ACTS ON FUND SHIFTS, APPROPRIATIONS

Authorizes More Money For Departments to Meet Unanticipated Needs.

City council last night authorized 11 appropriations totaling $8,315 and ranging in amounts from $56 to $2,000, and approved fund transfers totaling $252.

The appropriations were made to meet needs unanticipated by councils finance committee when it drafted the appropriations bill early this year.

Largest of the appropriations was for $2,000 from the sanitary sewer fund for the purchase of a sewer cleaning machine. It is expected to speed work of cleansing the sanitary sewers of roots and debris.

Another $2,000 was taken from the waterworks surplus to pay for unanticipated extensions in the distribution system. The money was taken from $1,500 which had been earmarked for the purchase of 200 new water meters and from a $1,000 fund set aside for the purchase of 10 new fire hydrants.

Gasoline tax funds were tapped for $600 for paying laborers in the street department and $350 was taken from water department funds for the purchase of a new transformer being installed at the Maxwell pumping station.

To provide for the city's share of a $40,000 National Youth Administration airport improvement project, council approved an appropriation fo $200 from the general fund.

The police radio is in need of repairs and $200 was set aside to meet that expense while two appropriations totaling $309 were made from the sidewalk funds to make refunds to persons who had paid for improvements expected to be put down by WPA this summer. The project was later rejected by the WPA.

To provide for the city's share of the expense in the cost of improving Augustine avenue, council authorized an appropriation of $56 from gas tax funds.

The tranfers approved included $200 in park funds, $40 for drawing maps for the Richland county election board and $12 for insurance on buildings, both in the general fund.

TRIBE WORRIES OVER HEMSLEY

CHICAGO—(AP)—Catcher Rollie Hemsley's injury was the Cleveland Indians' number one worry today.

He hurt his right side throwing to first in the eighth inning yesterday. He was given hot applications and then taped. Trainer Max Weisman declined to express an opinion as to the seriousness of the injury.

Frankie Pytlak, the Indians' only other catcher, is in the worst batting slump of his career, his average being below .100 today.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1940.

A French fortune teller has quit in disgust—not being sure about the present, much less the future.

It's probably an entirely different feeling when airplanes sighted overhead mean that bombs are soon to be dropped.

An explorer brings back word that members of a South Sea tribe think they are the only human beings on earth—and the claim may merit study.

Council Approves Parking Meters

NOW that city council, by unanimous vote, has acted favorably in the matter of installing a limited number of parking meters in downtown Mansfield, on a trial basis, Safety Director C. M. Crafton is authorized to establish zones for meter parking and also to determine the type of meter to be installed.

The parking meter ordinance, as passed by city council last night, is a comprehensive document which starts with an explanation of conditions that justify the installation of meters to remedy congestion on busy streets, which tends to impede traffic and "constitutes a danger of life, limb and property of motorists, pedestrians and others."

Previously endorsed by the Retail Merchants association and recently approved by the Citizens' Traffic committee, decision of council to sanction installation of parking meters is in accord with action that has been taken in many other cities, small and large.

Several years have now been given to experimentation with various types of parking meters and a vast fund of information on the subject is available to Mr. Crafton as he approaches the task of comparing merits of different meters, automatic and manual, as well as the practicability and probable durability of each. It appears unlikely that Mansfield, having the experience of many other cities to draw from, should choose other than the best of available meters from the standpoint of convenience of operation and simplicity and durability of mechanism.

It has been stated by Mr. Crafton that he will ask for the co-operation of a council committee in working out the details of designating meter zones and other phases of the plan, as prescribed in the ordinance, evidencing serious approach to the problem of making this innovation successful in adding to public convenience and safety, and also providing additional funds for use of the police department in enforcement of traffic regulations.

People Want Defense, Not War

A FINANCIAL AUTHORITY recently made this significant observation: "Let us be on guard against the building of a war hysteria. Let us keep it clearly in mind that what we are talking about is defense and not going to war. This is the time for clear thinking rather than emotional thinking."

The standard polls indicate that while the American people are almost unanimously in favor of adequate preparedness, they are also overwhelmingly opposed to belligerent participation in the European slaughter.

Industry does not want war because, if for no higher reason, it knows from its experience in the last World war that it results in ruinous taxation and depression. It will do all in its power to avoid war—even while it does all in its power to make our defenses so strong that all aggressors will hesitate at bringing war to us.

Guard Against Rats and Plagues

UNITED STATES public health officers are having a busy time at ports these days. The port of New York, for instance, is definitely at war—on rats and plagues. A boat from any port south of Gibraltar is regarded as plague-infested. If there are any signs that there is a single rat aboard any ship, that ship must go through a fumigation with an acid gas. The dead rats are then carted off to laboratories to be examined for plagues, and for fleas that carry plagues.

For some time before the war began it was unusual to find any rats aboard ships in New York harbor. Now that tramp freighters are displacing the fine ships of the line, rats are coming in by hundreds.

"One mistake would not be pleasant," is the word of Dr. G. C. Sherrard of the U. S. health service. Delousing stations are ready on an island in the harbor in case typhus is discovered.

Not the least terrible accompaniment of war are the plagues. Cleanliness of house and yard is the great preventive of most of them. Rats have no place in or about any building. Badly kept backyards, all alleys, rubbish heaps, stables and the like are rightly suspect. Cities have health officers. Communities too small to be organized in such ways should do something about organizing themselves to be on constant guard at this time.

It is usually not necessary to have epidemics if the causes of the spread of disease are removed. Forewarned should be forearmed. Cleanliness is of first importance. Cleanliness everywhere.

Jeers Have Replaced Cheers

WHAT'S the matter with American baseball fans? Or maybe teams? The former used to cheer the latter with gusto on the slightest provocation and reserved their jeers for umpires.

This season, however, hardly a team has escaped the boos and razzberries of spectators. A player who makes a mistake gets little sympathy from the grandstand. Yells of derision imply a widespread view that he has let the crowd down.

Perhaps this attitude follows the efforts of club owners and managers in recent years to make the game less of a competitive sport and more of a spectacle with box office appeal. Perhaps the players themselves have become more coldly businesslike in their attitude toward the game and their contracts.

Or the public may have changed. The same cynicism and unfair criticism that appear in other realms of life may have broken out in baseball. There is a place for wholesome criticism in the world. But addiction to the habit of fault-finding can become a vice or a disease.

"Medical journals report a sudden rise in mental cases during the last two months"—but possibly it is only that more are being recognized as such.

A newly-designed timepiece calls out the exact hour when you press a button—thus relieving clock-watchers of even that much effort.

THE STORKS THAT BRING GROWN-UPS

Listen, World!

Give Yourself!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SAYS she to me—"I read your articles regularly but they always jar me. I admit you have a few bright thoughts, but you spoil everything by talking about yourself and your experiences. Don't you know that is bad taste?

Yep, lady, I know it's bad taste. And I understand also how riled it must make you. Once upon a time I, too, was a lady. And tried to keep all the rules. I had been taught, as you were taught, that to speak of oneself was the height of bad breeding. So I kept my griefs and blunders to myself as if they were something unique and holy. And in time I came to believe that they really were.

But presently life shoved me out into the thick of things and I got a big jolt. I discovered that all about me there were millions of other grieving, blundering human beings. And there wasn't a particle of difference between their griefs and blunders and my griefs and blunders. Foolishness was all of a piece and heartbreak was all of a piece—I had nothing on the other fellow and the other fellow had nothing on me.

So a little understanding came to me and a great deal of pity. I wanted to help these other people whose lives were as jumbled as mine. And I tried to help them in the ways I had been taught to help—the refined, well-bred ways which all ladies are supposed to use.

But I couldn't get my stuff across. No one wanted my pretty speeches. No one care a hoot about my wise advice. What were words to them? They had words enough of their own. And how could good manners help when a fellow is in a jam? They needed something warmer—quicker—

And so, lady, I got all over being well-bred. And nowadays I don't give a rap what I say or how I say it, as long as it helps and lands. For I have discovered that what the other fellow needs is not words but me—myself. Me, with my fibs and my foolishness, my selfishness and cowardice, my aching heart and my so frequently empty head. For that gift of my muddled self is the only thing that will help him with his muddled self and that feeling of our common misery is more comfort and inspiration to him than a thousand snooty sermons, be they ever so refined.

And I suspect that what goes for writing columns, also goes for living life. Often I've thought how Christ, as His last gift, shared the bread and wine of the Passover with those working men He loved. Simple stuff, that sour wine and unleavened bread.

Common as the lives it nourished. Yet, by that act He bound His men more closely to Him than by the most elaborate ritual. For, by sharing that simple meal, they shared forever His tears and sweat. His faith and prayers and everlasting hope. And that common touch of His human hands, as He broke the bread, was to comfort men through all the years to come.

It's a far cry from the Last Supper to a columnist's daily grind. But if, beyond the page, you're seeing faces you love dear foolish faces, troubled and shamed and bewildered like your own, are you going to stop and wonder how to act "well bred" or are you going to reach out and give them all you have—the common stuff of your own humanity?

LADY, I'M GOING TO REACH. AND IF YOU DON'T LIKE MY REACH—DUCK!

Spanish Edition of Reader's Digest

The August issue of the Reader's Digest announces the publication of a Spanish-language edition of the magazine, for distribution throughout Latin America. Designed to bring about a closer understanding between the peoples of North and South America, the subscription rate has been established at only $1 a year postpaid.

Readers of the Digest in the United States are being invited to sponsor "charter subscriptions for people in Latin America with similar occupational interests. If no recipient is designated by the sponsor, the Reader's Digest will select a name from representative lists of Latin-American doctors, lawyers, businessmen, students, prominent women and others.

"Obviously, the subscription price will not cover printing and distribution costs," say the editors, "even with revenue from a limited amount of selected advertising. It will, however, result in a large and immediate circulation. Any deficit will be met by the Reader's Digest association, which is establishing the Spanish edition on a strictly non-profit basis."

Monument to McGuffey.

Announcement of plans for a memorial statue on the campus of Miami university, honoring William H. McGuffey, compiler of the celebrated series of readers bearing his name, is a merited recognition.

The present generation which knows the McGuffey readers only at second or third hand or by hearsay owes a greater debt than they know to the elementary school educator of the last century. The readers would likely evoke only polite amusement in a progressive school of today, but they were admirably suited to their period and contributed in an invaluable degree to the formation of character and the building up of attitudes of right-thinking in a period when life was simpler and the moral issues less complex.

The loyalty of the thousands of elderly McGuffey enthusiasts to his memory and his standards is sufficient proof of the vitality of his influence.—Columbus Dispatch.

Military Strength Makes Japan Practically Boss In the Far East

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Several careful secret surveys made recently of Japanese military and naval strength indicate that Japan can do just about anything she wants in the Far East.

The reports show that the Japanese navy is in A-1 shape, and has suffered not a bit as a result of the Chinese war. The Japanese army also is in good shape, though not in the same condition as the navy. The Chinese war, though still dragging on at heavy cost, has been an excellent training school for the Japanese military.

Chief handicap under which Japan suffers is her desperate economic situation. Easiest remedy for this is to take the Dutch East Indies and the wealthy possessions of the Dutch, French and British in southern Asia.

This is what seems sure to happen. There is no question but that the Japanese can take French Indo-China, the Dutch possessions of Java and Sumatra, and all the other South Pacific islands that are worth bothering about, in a few weeks.

Only spot which might hold out is the British naval base at Singapore, and naval experts disagree as to whether the Japanese could take it or not. In time, they probably could.

Everything now seems set for the Japanese to steam south simultaneously with the Hitler blitzkrieg against Britain. Probably the Japanese will wait until they see how the blitzkrieg is going before they stage theirs in the South Pacific.

TNT—Don't Touch.

NEBRASKA Republicans are very enthusiastic about Wendell Willkie, but they want no speech by him in McCook, home town of Senator George Norris, the state's veteran public-power crusader.

Such a plan was reported shortly after Willkie arrived at his Colorado vacation spot, which is near McCook. News dispatches declared that the GOP standard bearer intended to beard the father of TVA right in his own home town. But the idea did not thrill Nebraska Republican leaders.

They have a wholesome respect for Norris' vote-swinging powers, recall vividly how four years ago in a three-cornered race which he entered at the last moment he polled 53 per cent of the vote.

So last week a delegation made a pilgrimage to Willkie. In the group were Kenneth Wherry, state chairman; George Carpenter, national committeeman; Hugh Butler, candidate for senator, and Dwight Griswold, candidate for governor. They received a cordial welcome and discussed a number of subjects, prominent among which was a strong argument as to why Willkie should NOT make a speech in McCook.

It was pointed out that Norris is not up for re-election this year, that he is busy in Washington and not likely to take an active part in the Nebraska campaign unless baited into it. And they vigorously counselled that this be avoided if possible.

"There is no need stirring up Norris if we don't have to," advised State Chairman Wherry. "He can cause a lot of trouble."

Sub Scare.

THE shipload of congressional and other guests had a gala time on the maiden trip of the new U. S. S. America, but they also got the scare of their lives.

The incident arose out of a chance remark during a ship-to-shore broadcast from the bridge when the vessel was well out to sea. Captain Giles Stedman was giving the position of the ship.

"We are exactly 95 miles due east of Atlantic City," he said.

"Holy smoke," broke in someone, "what a sweet spot for a German submarine! Better be careful, captain."

Stedman smiled and no one thought any more about it until later when the big liner suddenly began to zigzag crazily. In the winking of an eye the rumor was skyrocketing among the passengers that a U-boat was stalking the vessel.

Near pandemonium broke out. Some guests, including at least one senator and several congressmen, rushed to their staterooms and donned life preservers. After several minutes of panicky confusion, the alarm was dispelled by word from the bridge that the ship was not trying to escape a sub.

"Only testing the engines," was the explanation. "There is no danger of any kind. Go back to your drinks."

Harry Hopkins.

THERE was one piece of advice the Democratic national committee group gave the president when they conferred with him last Thursday. It was short and snappy. "Keep Hopkins out of the campaign!"

This was not the first time Roosevelt had been told this since the noise-some Chicago convention, where the idealistic but politically inept secretary of commerce held forth as White House generalissimo amid a continuous roar of resounding blunders. Others have voiced the same pointed counsel.

In fact, one of the most significant recent inner-administration developments is the unanimity of view that Hopkins is a trouble-making influence around the president.

What gives weight to this undercover feeling is that some of the sharpest critics are New Deal bigwigs who have been Hopkins' closest friends and were his staunchest defenders when he was under fire during his WPA days.

But like the regulars, they now hold that his residence in the White House and constant ready access to Roosevelt's ear is very harmful.

Specifically, it is being charged that Hopkins is preventing the president from obtaining realistic information on important situations, is giving him unsound and timid advice, and is keeping hard-hitting fighters from his councils.

One of the most serious accusations against Hopkins is that he won, and is keeping, his behind-the-throne place by the policy of never standing up against Roosevelt on issues.

It is one of the president's weaknesses that he doesn't like tough-willed advisers. He will listen to suggestions and argument, but once he has made up his mind he is irritated by continued resistance. Unlike other inner-circlers who stubbornly hold to their contentions, Hopkins never goes beyond a certain point.

He will lay proposals before Roosevelt, but if the president draws back and manifests disapproval, Hopkins backs down and runs for cover.

Note — Hopkins is one of the most difficult men to see in Washington. It is far harder to get to him than to the president. Even officials of the commerce department have trouble getting to him directly.

NEW YORK—Here in the witty east, where jokes are almost never new, but where they sometimes do have timely twists, Frankie Masters takes time out from directing his band to tell of the little shop he passed up in Harlem. Undoubtedly the proprietor of this shop was a movie fan, as you shall see.

When Frankie passed the shop he observed a window card which listed the more appetizing of the shop's wares. The first item, for instance, said "Swiss Cheese, 24c." The second said "Skinless and Boneless Sardines, 19c." . . . The third said "Georgia Melons, 50c." . . . The fourth said "Turkey Sandwich, 30c."

Down at the bottom of the card was lettered:

"All This, and Herring Too."

AFTER sitting in on the "Luncheon at the Waldorf" program the other day we shared a late snack with Ilka Chase, and sure enough she had one too. A funny story, I mean. The one Ilka likes to tell is about the WPA worker who opened his weekly salary envelope and found that his check was one cent short. He had received $14.99 instead of the customary $15. This burned him up, and after delivering a tirade against the government in particular and the world in general, he sat down and batted out a sizzling letter to FDR. Presently one of the president's secretaries received he letter, and he was so stunned by its contents that he showed it to the president.

"Have Mr. Morgenthau send this man a check," Mr. Roosevelt suggested.

Several days later the WPA worker was delighted to find in his mailbox a check for 1c from the United States government. Why, this wasn't such a bad world after all, he thought, hurrying to the bank.

When he arrived he tossed the check to the teller. "How about cashing this?" he blustered.

The teller glanced at the check, glanced back at the WPA worker, and without batting an eye said, "How do you want it—heads or tails?"

PRESENT also at this confab was Joan Blaine, the radio actress, who said she didn't know any jokes but that she had had a funny experience with a "deaf and dumb" man that afternoon.

"What was that?" we wanted to know.

Well, she said, she always had been interested in the sign language used by people who had lost their senses of hearing and speech. She had even gone to the trouble of learning the sign language. That was when she was a teacher in a Colorado mining camp.

During the afternoon she was approached on 6th avenue by a man who presented her with a card which said he could neither speak nor hear, and could she help him. On impulse Joan began talking with him in the language of the deaf and dumb.

But the man didn't get it. Suddenly she said, "Is that your dollar on the sidewalk?"

The "deaf and dumb" man quickly looked around and cried, "Where?"

A Farmer's Diary

Threshing Wheat

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE threshing rig pulled into our place at evening. Two little brothers watched the cloud of dust that rose from the gravel road and knew by the sound that it was no car or truck. There was only one other guess. Frantically they came running in, yelling with all their might, "The threshers are coming!"

One man, alone, guided the rubber-tired outfit. But for the exhaust, the big machine came up the highway noiselessly. At our drive he described an arc which placed the thresher on a spot where it could be backed into the barn floor. Then the front of the tractor was hitched to the short tongue of the machine and slowly pushed in through the big barn doors. In a few moments it was blocked and set, ready for business in the morning.

When I was a little lad, as my own are now, I saw three strong horses pull the heavy burden into the barn while four men guided the fickle tongue which jousted them back and forth as if they were midgets. The old steam engine of those days was dangerous if it came too close. I saw my older brothers hitch to the heavy water tank, drive to the creek and dip up a ton or more of water. We always hauled an ample pile of coal, for threshing lasted nearly two whole days. A crew of three men always went with a rig in those days. Now the steam engine is out, and the monster steel wheeled thresher with its heavy timbered exoskeleton is seldom seen.

At morning when the shocks were dry, I pitched on a load in the field. My neighbor hauled it in. As he reached the bridge three more wagons with flat riggings came slowly up the western road. A farm tractor hitched to a wagon brought up the rear.

I thought of what a change has occurred in a few years. Now two farmers pitch sheaves, as rapidly as their strength permits, upon an endless belt that feeds the ever-hungry mouth where whirling sharp steel blades make strawy morsels more digestible. No man needs to stand, any more, upon a vibrating platform and feed the monster with bright whirling teeth—no boy need keep a keen bright knife in hand to cut the bands and tear the wheat apart.

And even now this present thresher is obsolete. Soon the combine will be as essential to a farm as is the binder now. One man can do more work than ten did 50 years ago. But the straw, bereft of grain, and the chaff that sifts through every crack of the old barn still have the fragrance of the olden days. Newly threshed wheat tastes as good and forms the same sweet morsel beneath one's tongue.

CHAPTER XI

"But, Al, I promised mother I'd stay with Clara," Marilyn protested. Mums was terribly worried. She seems to sense something is wrong. I didn't tell her—just that Clara wanted me to come to New York to be with her for a few days. If Mums finds I've gone to another hotel, she'll be frantic."

"Then we'll see your mother doesn't know—for a few days anyhow. I can fix it at Clara's hotel to take care of your mail or any long distance messages. I know a girl over there—Miss Nevermind."

"Al, will you be serious? I'm terribly worried, really. I'm afraid I haven't much influence with Clara."

"I am serious. Never more serious in my life. When I think of sweet, clean you going to bat for that—what I mean to say is I don't like the setup with you in it. What's more, Uncle Al insists that you don't tag along with Blondie unless he or some other male relative is along to—well, to give the party tone. I doubt she'll invite you, but just in case, the answer is NO. She starts rehearsing in a couple of days—says she—in the new floor show at the Blue Parrot—night club to you. There's a heavy swain yclept Herman Hess who's taking her places. He labors under the delusion he's a playboy and spends tons of do-re-mi proving it. I wouldn't like the color of his hair—if he had any."

"It sounds—hopeless. Knowing Clara as I do—"

"Keep the chin up, Heartbeat. We'll shake Blondie loose from the fleshpots. The Chief—Palmer Watson, head of Metropole—has given orders to go the limit. He's set on getting her out of town before she pulls the company down over his head. The first thing we have to do is to make a little reconnaissance trip to Clara's hotel."

Al paid the bill.

"I'm ready," Marilyn said. Her chin was firm.

"Right. Let's go!"

A voice thick with sleep answered the telephone when Marilyn asked for Room 369 at Clara's hotel.

"Is this Clara Marsh?" Marilyn said.

"Yes. What do you want?" came peevishly.

"Clara," eagerly, "this is Marilyn."

Marilyn heard a rustling, a confused sound of motion at the other end of the wire.

"Marilyn!" Clara was wide awake now. "You mean my sister Marilyn? Quit trying to be funny. Whoever you are, you have a nerve calling me this hour of the morning."

"But I am your sister Marilyn. Don't you recognize my voice?"

"For the lovva—where are you?"

"Downstairs in the lobby of your hotel. I'm coming right up."

"Well—it is you. What do you mean by following me to New York! You came to spy on me, that's what. I can thank Al Martino for this. He's getting even because I won't do what he wants me to. I'll get even with him, I'll——"

"Clara, please, I don't know what you're talking about. I came to New York on my vacation, to see the Fair——"

"Yes you did," derisively. "You came to spy on me. You let me alone, hear? You stay away from my room!" It was a shout. "You keep out of my hotel. If you bother me again I'll call the manager and have you put out for bothering me. I'm NOT going back to Millville, and that's that. GOOD-bye!"

The receiver clicked sharply.

Marilyn stood for a time holding the mute receiver to her ear. She must have time to compose herself. Her lips were pressed together tightly, her eyes closed to shut back tears, half of hurt, half chagrin

"What's the news, Puss-in-Boots?" Al asked, gently for him. "Sister isn't overcome with joy at the sound of your voice? She didn't ask you to share her lavish apartment?"

"She was furious." Now Marilyn dared hang up the receiver, face Al "She says I'm not to come near her, that I'm here to spy on her."

"The more I hear of Blondie, the better I like strangulation." Al made a gesture of disgust. "Not come near her, huh? Fine! So we'll walk straight up to her room and make a noise like arriving guests."

"No, we can't do that. Clara said she'd call the manager and have me put out if I bothered her again."

"She'll WHAT?"

"She'd do it, too, or try to. When Clara's in a temper she doesn't know what she's doing—she doesn't care. There'd be a scene—it might get into the papers—she being in the public eye, a beauty queen——"

"Beauty queen? If that big blond's a beauty, I'm Bob Taylor with all the good points of Ty Powers thrown in. So she wants to play rough, does she? Then we'll play her way. Wait right where you are, H. B. I'll check your bag. We're going for a walk around the block."

"Perhaps that would be best," Marilyn felt defeated. "We might think of some way to persuade Clara to listen to reason—"

"I've already thought," Al said, donning his best business manner. "One twist of the brain, and out pops an idea. Bright idea Al, they calls me. We check bag, and we're off for the fights."

Halfway down the block, Al turned Marilyn in at a flower shop.

"Gardenia, please," he told the clerk. "A very special gardenia for a very special lady. Also a dozen posies, big showy ones, lots of color, lots of oomph—to be delivered."

The clerk was pleased. Nice order.

"We have special roses, sir, very special. The stems they are very long, and the scent, the aroma—magnifique. There is the American Beauty, regal, sir, regal. There is also the yellow rose from our own hothouse—"

"Yellow!" Al grabbed the astonished clerk's hand, shook it vigorously. "How did you guess it? Wrap up a couple of dozen yellows in a nice gaudy bundle—lot of silver ribbon and gauze and chi-chi."

"Yes sir." The clerk was used to odd orders. "Where shall I send them, sir? Would you like a card, to enclose your name?"

"No. I'll send a boy for them from the hotel down the street. How soon can you have them ready?"

"At once, sir At once."

"I guess that will be soon enough. Get the gardenia. I'll pay you now. Sa-ay, that is a posie!" Al exclaimed as the clerk lifted it, pure ivory and glistening green, from a bed of cotton. Al took the flower, presented it with a new solemnity to Marilyn "My compliments, Duchess," he said. "If the flower were lovelier, it would be like you."

Marilyn flushed with pleasure. What girl doesn't thrill at being likened to a lovely flower?

In the street again, Al said, "You're wondering about the yellow roses. They're the pass key to Blondie's apartment. She's whacky about having her rooms filled with flowers from what she calls her 'admirers.' It's a hundred to one she won't open the door until she knows who's on the other side. A boy bearing gifts will get the welcome signal.

"We'll step right back to the hotel. I'll get a phone girl there—Miss Nevermind—to pick us a boy who knows his way around. For a healthy tip a bellhop can be awful smart. He'll take the roses to Blondie's room without stopping to send her a letter he's coming. When he steps inside the door to deposit the posies, I'll be stepping on his heels. I may even give him a push to be sure he doesn't stand in my way. Once inside, I'll play doorman. I'll see that the door stays open until you—you're close to the wall alongside the advance guard during the preliminaries—until you go over the top—I mean over the threshold. The boy will take a fast dive out, I'll close the door very fast and very tight and after that—we're in the laps of the gods. Maybe Blondie will be too weak to stand up under a surprise attack. Anyhow, we'll be close enough to the enemy to see the whites of her eyes. How do you like my war plans, Lefty-ant?"

Marilyn said, staunchly, "I like any plan that will get me to Clara."

"We'll call this one the Yellow Plan," said Al. "If we're thrown back, we'll try a plan of another color."

WPA CHILDREN GET PICNIC BID

Volunteers of America Expand Plans for Outing.

Expanding their original plans, the Volunteers of America announced today that their annual picnic for underprivileged children would be open to children of families on WPA rolls First invitation cards went to children of families on direct relief.

The picnic will be held Saaturday at North Lake park.

R. L. White, superintendent of the mission, today asked children of WPA families to register at the Volunteer headquarters if they wish to attend, so that officials will know approximately how many to provide for.

250 RICHLAND COUNTIANS AT PICNIC AT LAKE

Most State Employes on Hand For 'Citizenship Day' Outing at Chippewa.

More than 250 Richland county residents, including most of the state employes in the county, were expected to attend the Governor's Citizenship day picnic this afternoon and tonight at Chippewa Lake park near Medina.

Gov. John W. Bricker and other state officials were scheduled to arrive at the park early this afternoon and Gov Bricker was on the program for the principal address at 3 p. m.

A bathing beauty contest, band contest, and a number of athletic events were arranged for the outing which was expected to attract hundreds of state workers and others from eight northcentral Ohio counties.

Recently naturalized citizens received a special invitation to attend the affair, and Gov. Bricker was scheduled to present one new citizen from each county with a copy of the constitution and a small American flag.

Among the Ohio notables who were expected to be present are U. S. Senator Robert Taft, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, R. B. Gardner, Mansfield, Ohio, commander of the American Legion, and Col. Robert S. Beightler, state highway director.

State Offices Closed.

State offices in Richland county, including the highway department, sales tax and aid for aged offices, were closed at noon today to permit workers to attend the picnic.

The outing is one of several scheduled for all sections of the state this year. In recent years, one big picnic was held, usually in the central or northern part of the state, and state offices were closed for the day. State officials believe more persons will be able to attend under the present plan of holding picnics in widely scattered sections of Ohio.

MISS ANDERSON TELLS DATE FOR NUPTIALS

To Wed Robert Rohrer on Aug. 18; Mother, Sisters Entertain With Announcement Party Yesterday.

WITH the call of "Extra, Extra," Mrs. Howard Heston distributed miniature newspapers, revealing the approaching marriage of her sister, Miss Bette Anderson, and Robert P. Rohrer, to the 23 guests at a party in the Susie Janis home on Park avenue west road yesterday evening. Mrs. Heston was associate hostess with her mother, Mrs. O. P. Anderson, and her sister, Mrs. Edward Channell, in giving this affair.

The wedding of Miss Anderson and Mr. Rohrer will be solemnized on Aug. 18 at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Anderson, 629 Davis road. Miss Anderson will be attended by her two sisters and Mrs. Donald Frampton. Mr. Rohrer, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rohrer, former Mansfield residents who now live in Springfield, has chosen Donald Frampton to be his best man.

Bridge was played at five tables during last evening's party, and prizes were won by the Misses Gerry Locke and Helen Seaton. Luncheon was served later at two long tables, which were centered with garden flowers and lighted tapers in pastel shades. Inserted in the pastel place cards were miniature crystal vases filled with tiny summer flowers. Miss Anderson received a lace dinner-cloth from the hostesses in honor of the occasion.

Out-of-town guests at the affair included the prospective bridegroom's mother, from Springfield, his grandmother, Mrs. W. E. Rohrer, and his aunt, Mrs. R. W. Carroll, from Shelby.

Both Miss Anderson and Mr. Rohrer are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. She attended Wittenberg college, where she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority, and is now employed at Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company. She is a member of Zeta Rho chapter, Delta Theta Tau sorority here. Mr. Rohrer attended Wabash college and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. Although the above picture was taken at the Ford exposition at the world fair in New York City, one of the young women is quite well known in Mansfield, as she has visited here on several occasions. She is Miss Jane Grimes, third from the left, cousin of the Misses Dorthea and Louise Grimes. All of these girls are college-trained hostesses in the Westinghouse exhibit at the fair and they tell visitors about the attractions and company displays. From left to right, these attendants are Mary Lou Miller, Ford hostess; Joan Sullivan, Miss Grimes, Mary Furtick Connor, Patricia Chapman and Estelle Webb.

Mrs. George Cockburn conducted a question bee, and the entertainment was closed with the group singing "God Bless America." Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Fackler and Miss Katherine Weber, and Mrs. Noel Ruckman and her committee, luncheon; and Mrs. Luther Fetters, program.

The next meeting of the Plymouth club will be held Sept. 3 at the home of Miss Florence Mittenbuhler. The Dolly Madison members will meet on Sept. 3 at the Presbyterian church in Lexington. This will be a dinner meeting at 6 p. m. in charge of Mrs. Wilbur Lawrence and her committee.

With MARIANNE

NOW that the weather has cooled off a bit, it's a little easier to think about fall clothes and look over the early heralds of fashion trends. . . . The silhouette will have a straighter line with a great deal of front fullness. . . . Short, three-quarter and wrist length sleeves are being featured, and skirt lengths are about the same. . . . The fitted midriff is still smart, but shoulder padding and fullness has been modified slightly. . . . For the first time in many a fall season, brown is sharing honors with black in leading the color parade—followed by greens, wines, medium blues, and golden honey shades.

With a glance around the downtown stores yesterday, I saw many attractive wardrobe notes for early autumn. . . . A pretty costume suit of stardust blue wool topped its tailored dress with a matching full-length coat. . . . There was trapunto trim on the bodice of the dress, while the coat (which had front fullness and a belt that tied) was trimmed with wide revers of brown squirrel. . . . Another ensemble, which was of a light brown wool also had a full length coat—only instead of being trimmed with fur, it was relieved with scrolled embroidery. . . . Fullness in the front of the skirt and a fitted back were highlighted by a front belt. . . . The neckline of the plain dress was brightened with sunburst tucks.

In looking over the sportier dresses for college and business girls alike, it is apparent that plaids will bask in much of the fashion limelight. . . . Most of these are predominantly brown, with shades of orange, yellow and green to form a contrasting pattern. . . . Some of the smartest of these plaids are combined with velveteen for attractive frocks. . . . One I saw in a local shop was a two-piece style with a plaid skirt and brown velveteen blouse—the latter being trimmed in the material of the skirt. . . . An unusual one-piece dress of plaid in brown tones featured a brown velveteen back which extended into a front yoke—while the pocket tabs, belt and collar bow were also of the velveteen.

SINCE the advent of the new (or should I say revived and modified) pompadour hair dress, pompadour hats have been introduced for fall and wintertime wear. . . . These are just a bit more extreme than the more familiar off-the-face hats and they can be purchased in most all colors and materials. . . . Velveteen turbans and tams also are being shown, as are tiny hats to be worn well back on the head so as to reveal the pompadour. . . . Oh yes, bird, veil and ribbon trimmings are pretty much in evidence on the new hats too.

There will be emphasis on the heels and toes of milady's fall shoes—with the new popular wedgies still in style. . . . The sport wedges are featuring welting, combinations of colors and pin tucking, while many of the high-heeled styles are cut-out and have open insteps and toes. . . . More pumps than ties are being shown—as a goodly number of medium heels. . . . If you're looking for something really different in shoe heels, you might get yourself a pair which has plastic ones that look a lot like crystal clear glass. . . . Colors have taken a back seat to brown and black here too—and most all the styles are in suede.

DO YOU have trouble finding a place for everything in your purse? Then you'll be delighted with the new ones a downtown store is showing now. . . . Large envelope styles, they have special places just inside the front flap for a mirror, note pad, pencil, cigarets and matches—as well as a roomy inside with a zipper compartment for the safekeeping of valuables. . . . These purses come in black, brown, green, red, wine and blue felt with bright plaid linings in harmonizing shades.

ONE of the handiest make-up kits ever has just been introduced by a leading woman cosmetic manufacturer. . . . She's called it a "caddy," and it contains ample supplies of powder, foundation cream, cleansing cream, lipstick and rouge in the three newest shades—Navy Red, Flag Red and Ayer Clover. . . . Incidentally this foundation cream is a new one, which is very light and fluffy. . . . It has a peach tone and goes on easily to form a soft, smooth powder base.
